PARASHAT TAZRIA is the first of two parshiot that deal with the laws of purification. The Israelites were sometimes afflicted by an illness called Tsara'at that required both a diagnosis and a spiritual cure that was administered by members of the priesthood. Although the word Tsara'at is often translated as leprosy, it is quite clear that this Hebrew word is altogether different from the disease we know as Hansen's Disease. Tsara'at, unlike leprosy, affects not only people, but also clothes and other objects.

PARASHAT TAHOROT (METSORA) continues to describe the laws for the prevention and treatment of Tsara'at. The role of the Priest was crucial in dealing with this disease and its effects on the people of Israel. While the Torah does not suggest that the Priest could cure this disease, he had an important responsibility in safeguarding the larger community and providing for the spiritual and psychological well-being of the afflicted person.
