Shavu'ot Please see accompanying service information

Parashat BEMIDBAR... The Book of Numbers contains a mixture of legal and narrative material concerning Israel's sojourn in the wilderness. The opening parashah gives a detailed description of the Israelite nation's demographic make up and the structure of its society. Not only are we told the number of people and the names of the leaders, but we are also told where each tribe was assigned to camp in relation to the Tent of Meeting. In this highly structured society every person knew his special place as well as his unique role in the community.

Yom Tov ends ... 8:57 PM

Seven weeks after Passover there is the holiday known simply by the Hebrew word for “weeks” which is Shavu'ot. This holiday is also known as Zeman Matan Torah, or “Festival of Giving the Torah,” or Hag Ha-Bikkurim the “Festival of the First Fruits”.

Zeman Matan Torah – According to the Sages, the Torah, the most important book, was given to us on Shavu'ot. It tells the story of Israel's covenant with G-d over countless generations from Adam and Eve through the reconstruction of the community in the land of Israel after generations of exile. It is our ancient spiritual heritage and contains the guidelines for living a life of righteousness. The Ten Commandments - the core of the covenant given at Mount Sinai - is the centerpiece of our reading from the Torah scroll on the first day of the Shavu'ot festival.

Hag Ha-Bikkurim – refers to the agricultural aspect of the holyday; in the modern period, synagogues and homes are decorated with greenery and flowers.

The biblical story of Ruth the Moabite is also read during the festival. The setting of this story takes place in the spring during the barley and wheat harvests. Its central character is a righteous woman who converts to Judaism and embraces the covenant of Torah. Sephardic Jews read a poetic ketubah (marriage contract) between G-d and Israel. In it the Torah is compared to a bride, and Israel to the groom who comes forward to accept her.

IN THE KITCHEN FOR SHAVU'OT

Sütlaç: Sephardic Rice Pudding

8 servings

*Sütlaç (also Sutlach or Muhallabeya) is a dairy Turkish treat
that can be enjoyed on Shavu'ot or throughout the year*

Ingredients:

- 3/4 cup white rice flour or regular, unflavored cream-of-rice cereal (not instant)
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 5 1/2 cups whole milk, divided
- 1/2 teaspoon and 1 tablespoon of ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Optional garnishes:

- Ground cinnamon
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts (pistachios, pine nuts, etc.)
- 1/2 cup raisins

Rosewater variation:

Substitute 1/4 teaspoon of ground cardamom for the 1/2 teaspoon of cinnamon and 2 tablespoons of rosewater for the vanilla. Garnish with pomegranate seeds, pistachios and toasted coconut chips.

Directions:

1. Combine rice flour, sugar and salt in a large saucepan.
2. Slowly add 1 cup milk while stirring until smooth paste forms. Slowly stir in remaining milk.
3. Place pan over medium heat and stir constantly for about 10 minutes until mixture is bubbling and has begun to thicken.
4. Reduce heat to low, stir in 1/2 tsp. cinnamon, and cook, stirring often, until bubbling, thickened and there is no raw taste, about 5 minutes. Stir in vanilla.
5. Pour into serving dishes.
6. Serve immediately with garnishes or wrap in plastic and store in refrigerator. (Press wrap against the top of the pudding.) Serve chilled or at room temperature. Garnish before serving.
7. Sprinkle puddings with remaining cinnamon and top each with the nuts and raisins.
